

City Seeks Increase In Uptown Parking

To Negotiate Lease for Lots Near Square

Five Per Cent Water Pay Increase Too Little, Union Says

The Harrisburg city council yesterday acted to help keep Harrisburg the shopping center it now is by increasing the uptown parking area.

A proposition to secure a city parking lot, which would be metered, was brought up by Don Williams, finance commission, and Mayor Claud Gibbons appointed the four commissioners as a committee to negotiate a lease.

"A lot of our merchants have been concerned with increased parking problems that have resulted from the growing shopping center," Williams said.

He stated he had given a lot of study to the problem and had investigated available parking sites. "Harrisburg's biggest asset is its shopping center and 10 years from now will be too late to do something about the parking," he stated. "For that reason I suggest we try to do something to help with parking in uptown Harrisburg."

He said that the lots just east of the Womack hotel, between Poplar and Locust, and only a half block from the square, could be leased, and that he believed the city should do something about it to provide more parking space. He said that about 60 parking places could be placed on these lots.

Williams also pointed out that the erection of the stop-and-go lights at Poplar and Main would knock out about 20 parking places, as the state requires parallel parking in all blocks leading to the lights. Thus, he pointed out, the city would be gaining about 40 parking places by getting the parking lot.

The council yesterday voted unanimously to favor a five per cent increase in pay for water department employees but a union representative answered that the men are sticking to the 10 per cent hike approved by the water board. Twice the water board had submitted its recommendation of a 10 per cent increase to the council, and twice the proposal was not acted upon by the council. However yesterday the 10 per cent recommendation was turned down and the five per cent hike approved.

Mayor Claud Gibbons, who said that "the five per cent seems to be tops," declared that at a previous meeting, union representatives at first appeared agreed on the five per cent, then said later that it was not satisfactory.

Council members have stated as their reason that the water department income and expenses do not justify a 10 per cent increase. Water board members have contended that if the rate structure is revised, that the raise can be given.

Income and Expenses Up, but City Of Harrisburg Stays "In Black"

More income but more expense. That was the story of Harrisburg's city finances last year, but the city operation continued "in the black" as in previous years.

A report of Rice & Bedel, certified public accountants of Belleville, for the fiscal year ending April 30 has just been received, and it shows the city operations generally in good condition.

The complete audit report will be printed in the summary of proceedings of the City Council and will be available in booklet form within a few days at the city hall, Don Williams, finance commissioner stated.

General Fund Receipts
The report of the city general fund showed a cash balance of $2,514.87 at the beginning of the year, receipts of $158,199.52, disbursements of $140,604.71 and a cash balance at the end of the year of $20,334.16.

Receipts included $74,169.18 in property tax, $6,000 in anticipation warrants, $7,828.32 from license fees and special taxes and $202.02 special assessments collected.

Parking

meter fees and penalties brought in $20,894.90.

The Police Magistrate's office turned in $5,073.27 in fines.

Fire insurance company fees totaled $3,232.88.

Other income to make up the balance of the $77,828.32 miscellaneous included outside fire calls, cemetery lot sales, sale of old fire truck, and miscellaneous items.

Doctors Take Eyesight of Boy, 4, In Effort to Save Life from Cancer

ORLANDO, Fla. (U)—Doctors took the eyesight of Mike Sibole, aged 4, today in an effort to save his life from cancer.

The brave little boy, who apparently had been told ahead of time what was to come, entered a world of lifelong darkness with memories of a world of beauty in his heart.

He withstood the relatively simple operation well, but in a hasty news conference afterward his doctor said he still has but a 50-50 chance of survival because of the cancer that cost one eye two years ago and the other today.

The removed eye will be examined by New York and Orlando medical laboratory experts.

The surgeon was asked if he was convinced all of the cancerous growth was removed with the operation.

"It's still a 50-50 chance," the doctor said.

Well-wishers from many parts of the nation kept the hospital telephone jangling before, during and after the 41-minute operation.

Woman Hit by Golf Ball Asks $3,000 Damages

A woman who says she was hit by a golf ball driven by Jack Davenport of Harrisburg asks $3,000 damage in a circuit clerk complaint.

Mrs. Sammie Dell Gorin of Nashville, Tenn., says that she was playing golf just ahead of the local man at Kentucky Lake State park at Gilbertsville on July 19, 1955, and that when Davenport teed off, his golf ball struck her wrist, breaking it.

Her complaint says she spent $100 for medical care and that she was forced also to spend the following amounts as a result of her incapacitation:

Maid for eight weeks, $200; lawn mowed twice a month, $24; having boy's hair cut four times, $4; spent on her own hair, $20; for home canning and freezing of a year's supply of items, $200.

Her complaint was filed by Atty. D. F. Rumsey.

All Servicemen Placed Under Full Social Security

WASHINGTON (U)—Congress has passed a bill putting all servicemen under full social security coverage.

The Senate passed the bill Tuesday night by voice vote and sent it to the White House. The House approved the bill earlier.

The bill also would eliminate the $10,000 free insurance policies now issued to all servicemen. This would be offset by increased Veterans Administration payments to survivors of men dying in or as a result of military duty.

Present survivor benefit costs—totaling about 413 million dollars yearly—would be increased by the bill by about 45 million dollars.

Senate Votes To Liberalize Social Security

WASHINGTON (U)—Democratic sources today anticipated no trouble in settling House-Senate differences over a bill liberalizing social security benefits for some four million women, disabled workers and needy persons.

The Senate handed the Eisenhower administration a legislative setback Tuesday night by passing the Democratic "must" bill 90-0.

Two key provisions lowering the benefit age for women and permanently disabled workers were included, in somewhat different form, in the version passed overwhelmingly by the House last year.

The final action put every senator on record for the bill. Six absentees were announced as favoring it.

The vote was regarded as an election year victory for Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson, who put the bill on his list of "must" legislation for this session of Congress.

The bill's main provisions would:

Allow 250,000 physically or mentally disabled workers to collect benefits at age 50 instead of 65.

Boost social security payroll taxes $50 million dollars a year to finance the disability program.

Lower the benefit age for 800,000 women from 65 to 62, with some what reduced benefits for wives of retired workers and working women who choose the earlier retirement age. Widows could get full benefits at 62.

Provide increases of $5 to $7.50 a month for three million needy aged, disabled and blind persons under the federal-state public assistance program.

The Eisenhower administration fought the disability program, payroll tax increase and the boost in public assistance payments. It did not support—but did not actively oppose—the lower retirement age for women.

Hodge Holds Long Meeting With Coutrakon

Orville E. Hodge

SPRINGFIELD (U)—State's Atty. George P. Coutrakon interrupted a meeting with Orville E. Hodge today and told newsmen he expected it would take "several more hours" to complete his questioning of Hodge.

Coutrakon came out of the meeting after three hours and said "we are progressing, but I can't give you any details."

Asked if Hodge's statement was amounting to a confession, Coutrakon said "I won't answer that question." He also said he "can't answer" whether Hodge will be taken into custody as a result of the questioning today.

Coutrakon said Hodge "has not refused to answer any of my questions."

The state's attorney said he would ask Hodge to sign the statement being taken down by a court reporter, when the questioning is completed.

Du Quoin Packing Plant Rejects New Union Offer

DU QUOIN, Ill. (U)—A union officer said today the Du Quoin Packing Co. has rejected a new offer in the 95-day-old strike of packing house workers.

Charles Fischer, Chicago, said the union offer was a reduction from the previous demand. He is international representative of the striking United Packinghouse Workers. Involved are 222 workers.

Fischer said the union offer made Tuesday would have represented a $50,000 savings to the company over the original demands. The union has been asking increases ranging from 23 to 87 cents an hour. The original demands would have cost the company an estimated $200,000 to $250,000 a year, Fischer said.

Two negotiations sessions were held Tuesday. Fischer said the talks were recessed with the understanding they can be resumed.

Chief Investigator for Budgetary Commission Says Checks Total $547,000

SPRINGFIELD (U)—The chief investigator for the State Budgetary Commission today placed the amount of money involved in the check scandal in the state auditor's office at $547,000.

"That's the total of which I am now reasonably certain," Albert E. Jenner, Chicago attorney appointed an assistant attorney general to conduct the Budgetary Commission's investigation of the auditor's office, told reporters.

"If the total changes," Jenner said, "it will go up, not down."

The Budgetary Commission met Tuesday to organize its investigation, and emphasized its main purpose will be to recommend legislative and other changes to improve the auditor's office operations and guard against future irregularities.

"This is not a body to fix blame or deliberate criminal intent, but to find out... any breach of public trust and departures from proper procedures in the office of the auditor of public accounts," Jenner said.

Jenner told newsmen after the commission meeting that the group hopes to obtain the services of John Rendleman, general counsel of Southern Illinois University, to assist in the investigation.

He said two investigators from the attorney general's office also have been assigned to the commission.

The investigation would include a comprehensive study of the procedures and functions of the auditor's office, primarily to make recommendations for improvements to the Legislature, Jenner said.

Sen. Everett R. Peters (R-St. Joseph), the commission chairman, said the full commission probably would meet again in about two weeks.

Peters said the commission agreed to obtain a reputable independent auditor to audit the auditor's books and records "to find out how much money is still there."

He said if funds from the auditor's office are available, they will be used to pay for the audit, otherwise the Legislature will be asked to provide a deficiency appropriation.

Ex-President Of U. I. to Be Sworn in Today

Sen. Elbert Smith Confers with Stratton On Possible Candidacy

SPRINGFIELD (U)—Lloyd Morey, 70, newly named state auditor to replace resigned Orville E. Hodge, arrived by plane today and prepared to take over the auditor's duties.

Morey, president emeritus of the University of Illinois, is expected to be sworn in later this afternoon.

He told newsmen as he arrived at the governor's office "It is a very heavy burden that descended all at once, and I have no immediate plans. I have to see what comes."

The governor's office prepared formal papers and a $50,000 bond of office for Morey to sign before the swearing in ceremonies in the auditor's office here.

The bond of office will be signed by Illinois Supreme Court Justice Ray I. Klingbiel, East Moline, and Ralph Maxwell, Nashville.

Klingbiel was in Springfield for the signing, but Aeronautics Director Arthur E. Abney and an aide to the governor were scheduled to fly the papers to Nashville in a state plane for Maxwell's signature. Two justices are required to sign.

Discuss Candidacy
Before Morey arrived at the governor's office Sen. Elbert Smith (R-Decatur) talked at length with Gov. William G. Stratton.

Smith said the governor asked him if he would be available as a candidate for state auditor to replace Hodge on the Republican ticket in the November election.

Stratton declined to name possible candidates under consideration for the auditor's spot at his news conference Tuesday.

Smith said he told the governor he could not say at the present time whether he would be available, but "I will know in two or three days."

Smith is a candidate for reelection as senator from the 28th District, which includes Logan, De Witt and Macon counties.

If he accepts the auditor's place on the ticket he will have to resign his senatorial candidacy, and the state Republican Central Committee would be required to name a candidate to take Smith's place.

Morey, who was born in Ladonia, Mo., graduated from the University of Illinois in 1911, became comptroller in 1916, and was named president in 1953.

Morey was succeeded last year by Dr. David Dodds Henry.

Dr. Lloyd Morey, who will take over as Illinois state auditor today, is a former acting president of the University of Illinois, a long-time accountant and a spare-time music composer.

He became a certified public accountant in 1916, five years after he went to work in the university's comptroller's office.

In 1916, Morey also became university comptroller and he served in that position until his retirement.

Morey was named acting president of the university in July, 1953, to replace the resigned Dr. George Stoddard. He gave up the presidency in September, 1955, when Dr. David Dodds Henry was named president.

Delegates

'Uncommitted'

Editorial — By BRUCE BISSAT

With only a few weeks to go before the Democratic convention in Chicago, it begins to look as if perhaps 450 or more delegate votes will be officially "uncommitted" as the deadline approaches. But this can be a very misleading statistic.

Considerable misunderstanding often surrounds the use of the term "uncommitted." In one recent published survey of Democratic presidential prospects, an estimate of "first ballot strength" actually listed a large block of undecided votes. The survey went on to suggest that after the first ballot "uncommitted" states could be expected to shift.

Such a situation is, of course, impossible. There is no such thing as being uncommitted on the first or any other ballot.

Delegates must vote for someone, and when they do they are not uncommitted. They may delay their commitment to a real contender by voting briefly for a favorite son candidate, but that is something else.

The point is that when the week of Aug. 13 rolls around, every delegate represented by the Democrats' 1,372 convention votes must be prepared to indicate his presidential choice.

The block of several hundred uncommitted votes is never the "no-man's-land" that some analysts seem to regard it. The category is a cloak designed to conceal decisions already taken, to allow certain leaders to move when they think the time is right, to permit many delegates to make more certain that the way they lean is the way the convention is likely to go.

In other words, the overwhelming bulk of the uncommitted are not delegates who have not made up their mind which candidate they like. They are simply people who for one of many reasons do not wish to declare their leanings until they are at or near balloting time.

One gets a wholly wrong impression of candidates' prospects if he assumes that the uncommitted are a vast reservoir of floating delegates without allegiances. Some are, but not too many.

To be sure, they can and do switch allegiances in those cases where things go bad for the man they favor. But that is not the same thing as suggesting they have no leanings in the beginning.

They can conceal their intentions only up to the first ballot. After that they cannot help but be known quantities. But the good political reporters in the various areas usually have a pretty clear idea how they feel long before that moment.

The word "uncommitted" as applied to convention delegates does not mean what it seems to. It's a label that ought not to fool anyone who's trying to figure out the major party presidential nominees in this or any year. Behind it, often plainly observable, may lie the real key to the nominating story.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Ex-Senator Cordon Now Receives Fees From Private Utilities; Utilities Have Well Greased Lobby Fighting Hell's Canyon; Hells Canyon Battle May Switch Control Of Senate.

WASHINGTON. — In the files of the Federal Power Commission are significant facts about certain lobbyists now engaged in one of the biggest legislative battles in Washington.

The big private utilities are required to publish the amounts they pay various people, and if you take the trouble to look at the 1955 annual report of the Idaho Power Company, on file at the FPC page 58, you will find this notation: "VII.1(A) Guy Cordon — Washington, DC (B) retainer (C) basis of charges—time required and expenses incurred. (D) account 798."

Guy Cordon, of course, is the amiable ex-senator from Oregon, Republican, defeated in 1954 by Senator Richard Neuberger during a campaign in which Neuberger accused Cordon of being friendly to the big private utilities and against federal development of Hell's Canyon on the Snake River. Cordon denied these charges at the time.

However, if you look at account 798, page 51, of the Idaho Power Co. report you will find listed disbursements for legal services of $31,989.95, of which $18,348.75 went to Parry, Kennan, Robertson and Daly in Twin Falls, Idaho, and the balance to ex-Senator Cordon.

Further research through power commission files shows that Senator Cordon also is being paid by Washington Water Power Company, another big utility which is fighting against Hell's Canyon. Both Idaho Power and Washington Water Power were once part of the giant holding company, Electric Bond and Share, before FDR's holding company act broke them up.

Cordon is paid a "retainer fee for 1955 of $10,000 in equal monthly installments."

Further search of the FPC records shows that Portland General Electric, which also has joined Idaho Power in financing the campaign against public development of Hell's Canyon, lists ex-Senator Cordon as getting a retainer of $10,000 per year, "commencing January 1955 as per oral agreement."

January 1955 was immediately after Cordon stepped out of the Senate. In other words, he retired on Dec. 31, 1954, and immediately began picking up retainers from the private utilities to help them defeat public power at Hell's Canyon.

WELL-GREASED LOBBY

You don't hear much about it, but one of the most potent and carefully greased lobbies in the nation's capital is now buttonholing senators to defeat Hell's Canyon. They are making none of the mistakes of the natural gas lobby which stubbed its toe when it tried, in effect, to bribe Senator Case of South Dakota.

Guy Cordon, who as an ex-senator, has the privilege of mingling with his former colleagues on the Senate floor, is part of this lobby. But he's only relatively a small part. Private utilities in the east, south, and midwest have ganged up with utilities in the northwest to stop Hell's Canyon.

Nor is the issue of federal development of Hell's Canyon solely involved. The basic backstage issue is whether the Democrats or the Republicans will control the Senate next year.

For Hell's Canyon is a fighting term in the northwest, and its defeat in July might well mean the defeat of two key Democratic senators—Magnuson of Washington and Morse of Oregon—in November. These two votes would mean the Democrats would lose control of the Senate next year.

Reason for political passion over Hell's Canyon may not be easily understood on the pavements of New York or on the prairies of Kansas. But federal power from some of the biggest dams in the world—Grand Coulee, Bonneville—has made the northwest blossom beyond human dreams, and the northwest wants to keep on blossoming.

Idaho Power is not dealing in big dreams. It has a license to build one small, relatively cheap dam on the Snake. Once this is built, a big federal dam will be out of the question. It would inundate the small dam.

The northwest knows that Hell's Canyon is the last remaining big dam site in the U. S. A. It also knows the Eisenhower administration will spend $800,000,000 on a public power dam on the upper Colorado which private utilities don't want to build themselves because it's too expensive to be economic.

Meanwhile they see the administration giving the choicest dam site of all—Hell's Canyon—to the private utilities.

In other words, the principle of private power vs. public power is not involved, for Eisenhower has already gone in heavily for public power on the upper Colorado where the private utilities don't want to build, but is for private power on the Snake river where the private utilities do want to build.

That's why northwest passions run high over Hell's Canyon.

DEMOCRATS DESERT

Here is the line-up of Democratic senators whom the utility lobbyists have been working on, and who may vote with the Republicans even if it means loss of Democratic control.

Russell of Georgia, usually a staunch Democrat has been hearing from Georgia Power and Light; Pastore of Rhode Island, another staunch Democrat, will vote with the New England power companies which have joined in the battle to help Idaho Power.

In the same category are reported Ellender and Long of Louisiana, despite the fact that the man who gave both their start, Huey Long, battled to the end against the big power companies; Fear of Delaware, Holland and Smathers of Florida; Byrd and Robertson of Virginia; and Daniel of Texas who's been hearing from friends of Texas Light and Power.

Modern Woodmen Picnic July 29

Modern Woodmen of southern Illinois will hold their 73rd annual picnic and basket dinner at Ferne Clyffe State Park, Goreville, on Illinois Route 37, Sunday, July 29, beginning at 10 a. m.

The public is invited to spend the day which has been provided with entertainment, contests and races. Special guests will be H. R. "Hank" Freitag, public relations director, Rock Island; Henry F. Turner, past president of Paducah, Ky., and W. H. Heugham, state manager, Bloomington.

OUT OUR WAY

WASHINGTON. — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has unanimously approved President Eisenhower's five nominees to the United Nations General Assembly.

It acted after Peter William Hogue, New York attorney and one-time foreign aid official, testified for more than an hour in opposition to the nomination of former foreign aid chief Paul G. Hoffman.

Hogue was accompanied by Brent Bozell, an aide to Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.). McCarthy, who did not appear, attacked Hoffman in a Senate floor speech last week and has served notice that he will fight the nomination when it reaches the Senate floor.

Two members of the committee, Sens. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), were among the nominees the group endorsed. The others were Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U. S. ambassador to the U. N., and Ellsworth Bunker of Vermont.

The committee also approved the nominations of five alternate U. N. representatives: James J. Wadsworth of New York, Lodge's deputy; Richard Lee Jones of Illinois; Frank C. Nash of Washington, D. C.; Edward S. Greenbaum of New Jersey and Mrs. Oswald B. Lord of New York.

Article Reports Most People Live Near Forest Areas

Most people in the United States live within a few hours drive of a national forest, where they can find some of the largest and best recreational areas in the country, reports the August issue of Holiday Magazine.

There are 149 national forests in thirty-nine states, and they are owned by the public that uses them, says the article. Shawnee National Forest in Illinois offers hunting, fishing, camping, skiing, and other outdoor sports, along with a full diversity of the American landscape, just for the taking, the article continues.

The official guardian of all this area, consisting of some 181,000,000 acres of land, is the U. S. Forest Service, writes author Bernard DeVoto. Established in 1905, their purpose is to safeguard and develop the natural resources found there and to preserve the natural beauty of the forests in their primitive condition.

The article gives the history of the Forest Service, its development of the national forests, and describes its extensive activities today. It praises the ranger, the solid base of the Forest Service, who is trained in so many subjects that one ranger calculated he had to be a jack of 465 trades.

Illustrated with eight pages of color and black-and-white photographs, the article discusses the hazards from man which the forests face, and declares that if the public took time to better acquaint themselves with their own possessions, many of these hazards would disappear.

Don't Argue with Wife While Driving Auto

BUFFALO, N. Y. — The city's coffers were enriched by $60 because Leo P. Ratka had a hot verbal battle with his wife.

Appearing before City Judge Willis G. Hickman, the 30-year-old motorist was accused by police of running six traffic lights and driving partly on the wrong side of the street.

"I was having an argument with my wife, and I guess I blew my top," explained Ratka.

Judge Hickman meted out a $60 fine, while Mrs. Ratka looked on unhappily.

Tall Drifter

XXXV

Frank pushed his gaze up on the knob while Swenson strung ropes from tree to tree. High on the Gobbler's slope Frank picked out an irregular ledge running above the tops of the cedar. There the few rifles they possessed would hold off the firepower Norring could direct against them. Jean sensed his thoughts and her hand dropped against his.

Then Frank held up his hand. He caught the sound of a wagon rattling across the slope. Frank drew his pistol and fired a shot. La Tour's hello reached them. He heard the sign of relief coming from Jean.

Drury whipped his team about beneath the pines. La Tour and Lopez dropped from their tired horses. La Tour had been hitting the eastern. They could smell his breath across a 10-foot gap. If there was a campfire, Frank thought, La Tour would explode.

Jean cried half angrily, "Doc, have you left anything in the barrel?"

"It's all there," he said owlishly. "I merely had recourse to my own supply." He waved her talk aside with a brushing motion. "We were followed by Emmett. For a while I thought it was curtains for us. But he soon figured out why Jean and the horses weren't with us. He and the Texans rode ahead."

"Any idea where they'll be?"

"Maybe they'll make their play on the Gobbler."

The soft wind brought its sounds of distant horses. He watched La Tour stabbing the night with his gaze; then said tightly, "It's Norring. He means to get our horses or die in the attempt."

"Then there's going to be some dead men," Doc finished.

Frank's eyes crept aloft to the ledge behind their camp. "Juan, build up a fire. Big enough to show Norring we're here. The rest of you roll your soogans near the edge of the firelight. Take your saddle guns and all the shells you can get in your pockets. Tod, you and Ricky will be as well off in the wagon. Neither of you could climb up there anyhow."

Drury snorted. "Yeah, but we'll be lookin' over our gun barrels." He began making a hollow square in the center of their supplies where they would fort.

Hyman had come back to report the canyon had no further exit, merely the one they had already roped off. The horses were safe.

The fire was slowly catching. Frank rolled a cigaret thoughtfully. He lit his smoke and pinched out the match. "Hyman, I want it to appear natural. The bedrolls will look as though we're resting. I don't know if Norring's only after our string, or if he means to shoot it out. You stand near the fire and play your fiddle. That'll draw them in until we find out what's on their minds. We'll be on that shelf back of you, guns ready for trouble. Have you got the nerve to try it?"

Hyman answered without smiling. "It's all right, Frank. When the time comes I'll be fighting, the same as you."

"Then let's get moving. They're coming. No shooting, fellows," he ordered with his sober look on the two men in the wagon.

Frank turned then in the direction of the cliff. Jean was at his side but La Tour and the other had already disappeared under the sooty scrub timber.

If Hackett came in shooting then Rafter C could make a shambles of his outfit from their position on the ledge. Emmett Cash was the only unknown possibility. Frank's shot, and their subsequent talk, might bring Emmett's gunmen roweling here before Norring was licked.

From their right flank Alex called them. Frank hurried over and found Lopez with the kid. Alex pointed at the ledge, which was a mere 10 feet above the base of the rock. Frank stepped into their locked hands and they hoisted him until his searching hands found a grip in the wall's texture. He found his way up slowly. When he reached the top he hooked his elbows over the edge and told Jean to climb up holding to his boot. With the pair below to help she was soon holding tight to him. At the base of the cliff the kid was crouched with his ear to the rock. "Wait! Somebody's up there."

Jean called softly that she had found a fissure to support her weight. La Tour was scampering up another face of the cliff. Frank pulled himself onto the ledge, then reached downward until his hand locked with Jean's. It was only a moment before he had her beside him.

He heard the muffled scrape of boots crossing the rock. The furtive movement was above him, behind a screening of cedar. Jean's breath escaped in a nervousness she couldn't conceal. "Emmett!" she murmured angrily. "He'd guess I crossed the malpais!"

Frank drew his gun.

"Hold it, friend! Don't run against your rope!" It was Emmett.

Frank heard Jean's startled cry as Marigny seized her. Then Cash prodded Frank with the gun. "We'll wait. Norring will take the camp. Then we'll smash him." He turned and gloated at Jean. "I'll have my horses. They were mine from the beginning, but you turned the old man against me."

Frank said doggedly. "Lew Chantry will wound you every day of your life."

Emmett said bruskiy, "Chantry's dead. We already buried him behind Yates' shack. Your shooting killed him."

Notes from Teen Town

NOTE: Joan Seright is vacationing in California and this column is written by Linda Rude.

Hi, Gang,

This is Linda Rude substituting for Joan as Star Reporter while she's vacationing in California. She flew out to visit relatives and will be gone a month.

Our thanks to Dr. and Mrs. G. R. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Shingler for chaperoning last Friday night and to Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Doerge and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stallings for chaperoning Monday night.

Some of our vacationing members have returned. Herb Parks, Bill Bottomley and Bill Brantley are back from their jeep ride to Wyoming. They have wild tales to tell about bears, rattlesnakes and snow! Marilee Durham and Judy Baker have just returned from Michigan with reports of much fun.

Want to make some easy extra money? (How crazy can I get?) Read over the premium list for our annual Saline County Fair. You'll find there are lots of entries for boys and girls under 21 years of age. All prizes are cash — and you'll be helping to make our Fair a better one.

Don't forget the Suggestion Box! Make your wants and suggestions known. Every note is read at the board meeting and is given careful consideration.

Heard at Teen Town: Lou Williams: "It has its faults— But STILL I sing. The Auto is a useful thing!" As Joan says: "See ya' at Teen Town —"

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D.
Written for NEA Service

MOST of the mistakes made by people are not made intentionally. But frequently they are costly in time, embarrassment, money, materials, or effort.

When our mistakes affect other people we sometimes find ourselves subject to criticism, discipline, or even penalty. Every now and then our mistakes result in physical injury or pain.

Errors are exasperating and ought not to be repeated, but losing our tempers and becoming angry does not seem to have much effect on the correction of our ways. Scolding other people for their mistakes does not seem to influence them to make fewer mistakes.

It is not enough to merely say that we shall try to make fewer mistakes. It is futile to add punishment to the self-suffering of one who has made a mistake.

The only way in which we can learn from our mistakes is to study how and why we made them and to eliminate the causes. Much of the cause we find in our lack of attention or in preoccupation. Some of it is in impatience while much of it is tension.

Prayer relieves a great deal of tension. God is a very good engineer to steer our lives away from mistakes.

IAA Says Illinois Farmers Penalized By Soil Bank Plan

CHICAGO — The Illinois Agricultural Association is asking the United States Department of Agriculture to change the system used for figuring soil bank payments for corn in south central and southern Illinois.

Otto Steffey, IAA president, requested the action because he said the present USDA system is penalizing farmers in these areas because they suffered a drought in 1952, 1953 and 1954.

Steffey explained the situation this way:

The USDA formula for establishing average corn yields per acre covered the years 1952, 1953 and 1954, when drought caused low corn yields in south central and southern Illinois.

But he charged the abnormal drought year conditions were not given adequate consideration by the USDA when it devised its formula for figuring the average yields on which soil bank payments are based.

"This results in substantially lower soil bank payments to farmers in these areas, which is unfair," Steffey said.

"The system for determining average yields per acre should make more allowance for abnormal weather conditions," the IAA leader stated.

He said the IAA is urging USDA officials to correct this inequity by revising the average yields for counties in the areas affected by the drought.

A Toolshed for 10,000 Years

JOHN W. ALLEN

Southern Illinois University

When white settlers first opened farms on the Mississippi flood plain at the foot of the sandstone bluffs between Prairie du Rocher and Modoc in Randolph county almost 250 years ago they began to use the protected caves beneath the shelving ledges of rock for shelter and storage. That use has been continued until now. Presently, some of the spaces are used to hold farm implements, tools and assorted items of discarded household equipment, along with lumber, fence posts, firewood, wire fencing and hay. A few pigs, chickens and calves also are kept in pens and sheds beside the rocky walls.

The present practice of using shelters definitely did not begin with the coming of white men. Spaces beneath rock ledges had been used for the same purposes long before that time. In fact, recent excavations indicate that these same caves were used as living spaces for pre-historic man a good 10,000 years ago. It might not be wrong to term them the oldest and most continuously used tool sheds in America.

Farming Methods Differed

Following close against the base of the cliff, often through a tangle of brush, briars, tall weeds and vines, many objects are found lying about that arouse memories of times when farming methods differed much from those of today.

Pulleys, old well pumps of the chain, bucket and lift type are there. There are even parts of an old wooden pump. These indicated the method of caring for the water problem in pre-electric days. A large wooden rake, complete with its long trip pole, that followed behind a farm wagon 50 years or more ago to rake corn stalks is well toward decay. Nearby are horse-drawn hay rakes, wooden and steel remnants of an old hand rake, a hay tedder, a hay frame, pitchforks, the sned of an old hand scythe, sickle blades and a rusted bundle of bale ties that suggest long hot days in the hayfield, days less common now that tractors do not eat hay.

A farm wagon, a sleigh, some old buggies, a sled or two, a survey, buggy shafts, poles and neck yokes, the bolster of a log wagon, one of the heavy cross timbers of a mudboat, large wagon hubs, some wagon bounds, and tire irons remain to remind visitors of farm transportation a century ago.

The irons of a new-ground plow, bits of a harrow, a single shovel plow used to "lay off" corn ground, with a rectangular stone slob having a hole in one corner so that it could be dragged down the furrow to cover the dropped corn, indicate old crop planting methods. There are one row corn planters, two row planters with their "checking" attachments and quarter-mile long knotted wires well rusted, to tell of progress in planting. There are some double-shovel plows, both wooden and steel stocked, to remind an occasional oldster of the vicious manner in which they could "kick." There are wooden beamed breaking plows, "diamond" plows used to "bar off" corn, walking cultivators, riding cultivators of both disc and shovel type, all telling more of improved farming methods. So much for the "unburied archeology" that adds reality to the more recent past.

Great Field for Research

Before men came to live along these bluffs, the ground level was much lower. Through the ages that he lived here the level has been built up many feet by accumulations of earth, ashes, charcoal from old campfires, bones, shells and stones. It is this accumulation that holds much of the story of the remote past. As this is removed, layer by layer, the record of man's life here is turned backward.

Two years ago a party from the Illinois State Museum worked here, uncovering reliable evidence that men lived here more than 10,000 years ago. Though they removed more than 20 feet of deposits, they did not reach the bottom of the deposits about the long dead campfires. This year they are back to do more digging and to go to the bottom. One can never tell what will be found, but hopes run high. Work already done indicates that this is a site of great promise. Preliminary work done in other places in southern Illinois convinces thinking people that one of America's great fields for archeological research lies in this region.

Michigan leads the nation in production of tart cherries, navy beans, cantaloupes, celery, cucumber pickles, strawberries, gladioli for bulbs and chicory.

The portion of highway U. S. 12 from Detroit to Chicago was formerly an old trail used by the Potawatomi Indians.

Followell-Biggers Marriage is Solemnized at First Methodist Church

Attorney and Mrs. John W. Biggers

On Sunday, July 1, at 2:30 p. m., the First Methodist church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Jean Followell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Followell, Harrisburg, to Attorney John W. Biggers, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Biggers, Harrisburg.

Before the beautiful colonial-style altar decorated with candelabra, emerald trees, and baskets of white gladioli, the impressive double ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. W. L. Cummins, in the presence of over three hundred relatives and friends of the new couple.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Robert Norman presented an organ recital of varied wedding and sacred music, followed by two beautiful solos, "The Wedding Prayer," by Bill Williams, Harrisburg, and "The Pledge," by Miss Virginia Bell, Cave-in-Rock, with Mrs. Norman accompanying at the organ. A duet, "The Lord's Prayer," was rendered by Mr. Williams and Miss Bell as a benediction. Miss Bell was a former college roommate of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style full-length gown of peau de sole, which flowed into a train. The bridal gown was made with an imported lace bodice, fashioned with a square neckline. A fitted cap of hand-made embroidered silk lace edged with pearls secured a finger-tip veil of silk tulle. The bride carried a wedding bouquet of white gladioli with stephanotis. Her strand of white pearls was a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Bob Stille, Carbondale, former college roommate of the bride, served as matron of honor, wearing a gown of pale green organza over taffeta with a full ballerina length skirt. She wore a matching headband of net and flowers. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and orchid shasta pompons.

Miss Pay Oglesby and Miss Kay Stille, both cousins of the bride, were bridesmaids. Their dresses were identical ballerina length gowns of pale orchid and yellow, respectively. They wore matching headbands and carried colonial bouquets of shasta pompons to match their gowns.

Earl D. Biggers, Cincinnati, Ohio, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Rev. Herschel Cline, Viola, Ill., and E. J. Flota, Alton, and serving as ushers were W. W. Chunn, Harrisburg, and Earl Whitler, Eldorado.

Lowell Stille, small cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Followell chose a light blue tissue linen dress with pearl and rhinestone trim, white accessories, and a white gardenia corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a rose lace frock with black accessories and a white gardenia corsage. Serving at the reception in Wesley Center were Mrs. Everett Stricklin and Mrs. C. W. Whitley, Harrisburg, who planned and supervised the table and refreshments; Mrs. Earl D. Biggers, Cincinnati, Ohio, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; Mrs. Richard Followell, Paducah, Ky., sister-in-law of the bride; and Miss Laura Raley, Mrs. Don Williams, and Mrs. Bill Williams, Harrisburg, assisted as hostesses.

On the beautifully decorated reception table, which carried out the color theme of the wedding, pale orchid, yellow, and green, was placed a three tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom. The emerald trees and white gladioli formed a background for the table.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. J. W. Brown, Mrs. Ella Brocket, Mrs. W. H. McKay,

Mrs. Roscoe Henshaw, Rt. 3, Harrisburg, is in Lightner hospital, where she underwent surgery to remove pins from a hip which was broken four years ago. Her condition is improving satisfactorily. Mr. Henshaw said.

Mrs. J. G. Black, Mrs. Wilfred Kiser, Elwood Renshaw, Carmi; Mrs. Karl Goodall, Fairfield; Charles Fuchtmann, Lawrenceville; Rev. and Mrs. Herschel Cline, Viola; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Flota, Alton; Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Biggers and son, Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Owen, Miss Barbara Bain, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stille, Carbondale; Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Belt, Miss Virginia Belt, Arlin Scott, Cave-in-Rock; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gates and daughters, Pamela and Marilyn, Springfield;

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Lett and Alfred E. Lett, Henderson, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Followell and son, Paducah; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Followell, Chicago; Mrs. Everett McDermott, Miss Dorothy Boursland, Earl Whitler, Eldorado; Mrs. O. E. Wood, Decatur; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Norvell, Belleville.

For a wedding trip in the Missouri Ozarks, the new Mrs. Biggers changed into a white linen suit with pale blue accessories. After a week at Lake Taneycomo the couple is now residing at 7523 Ellis Avenue, Maplewood, Mo.

Mrs. Biggers has been a teacher in the Harrisburg public schools for the past two years, following her graduation from Southern Illinois University in 1954. She will be a member of the faculty of the Webster Groves, Mo., public schools this fall.

Mr. Biggers, a 1954 graduate of the University of Illinois College of Law, was a practicing attorney in Harrisburg before accepting a position with Allstate Insurance company in St. Louis.

Both the bride and groom graduated from the Harrisburg Township high school, and were active in church and civic affairs in Harrisburg.

A rehearsal party in honor of the couple was given on Saturday, June 30, in Wesley Center with the wedding party in attendance.

Ebasco Denies Firm Helps Sway Interior Dep't

WASHINGTON (U-P)—C. N. Phillips, research director of Ebasco Service Inc., today denied that the firm is involved in an "organized effort" to sway the Interior Department in favor of private power companies.

He told a House government operations subcommittee that Ebasco had done research and engineering work for five Rocky Mountain private power companies who have been accused, along with Ebasco, of seeking to influence the department.

"Whatever we do for our clients is done as the direct result of an order from a client to Ebasco to supply professional services as requested and specified by the client," Phillips said in a prepared statement. "It is well known that these Rocky Mountain power companies are among the clients of Ebasco Services. We are proud of Ebasco Services. We are proud to serve them."

"Ebasco Services has at no time joined an 'organized effort' to influence the secretary of the Interior or any other government agency on behalf of private power companies," he said.

Brooks Lawrence Wins 13th Straight Without Defeat As Reds Defeat Dodgers, 4-3

By United Press

Brooks Lawrence's 13 consecutive victories gave him the longest winning streak in the majors since 1949 today and an outside chance to equal or surpass Rube Marquard's 44-year old all-time major league record.

The 205-pound Cincinnati Redleg right-hander ran his perfect season mark to 13-0 Tuesday night when he scored a 4-3 decision over the Brooklyn Dodgers. Lawrence touched off the winning rally himself when he opened the ninth inning with a double, pinch-runner Jim Dyck eventually scoring the decisive run when Ted Kluszewski singled with the bases filled.

The 13 straight triumphs give Lawrence the longest winning streak by a pitcher since Ellis Kinder reeled off that number for the Boston Red Sox in 1949. Lawrence is within three victories of the club record set by Ewell Blackwell in 1947 and within six of the big league mark of 19 straight wins established by Marquard in 1912.

Furillo Red Hot

Lawrence yielded a two-run homer to Carl Furillo in the first inning and another run in the seventh when the red-hot Furillo doubled home Duke Snider but the Redlegs tied the score at 3-3 in the eighth when rookie Frank Robinson hit his 20th homer of the season. Robinson, incidentally, needs 18 more homers to tie the big league mark for a rookie set by Wally Berger in 1930.

The victory, Cincinnati's ninth in 12 games with the world champions this season, moved the Redlegs to within one game of the first-place Milwaukee Braves, who bowed to the New York Giants, 8-6. The Braves had won seven straight games and the Giants had lost seven in a row.

Willie Mays doubled home Jackie Brandt to break a 6-6 tie in the 11th inning and Hank Thompson singled for an insurance tally. Johnny Antonelli picked up his ninth victory in relief while Gene Conley suffered the loss. Brandt, Bill White and Dusty Rhodes homered for the Giants and Hank Aaron hit one for the Braves.

Bob Friend won his first game since June 16 and 12th of the year when he pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-2 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals. Dick Groat doubled home two runs in the 10th to snap the Pirates' six-game losing skein and hand the Cardinals their third straight defeat.

Don Hoak's third double of the game followed by Gene Baker's single enabled the Chicago Cubs to gain a 16-inning, 3-2 win over the Philadelphia Phillies. Turk Lown held the Phillies to five hits in the last seven innings to win his fifth game while Jack Meyer suffered his fifth loss.

Cardinals Purchase Hurler Bob Blaylock

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals today announced the purchase of pitcher Bob Blaylock, leading hurler in the International League, in a continuing effort to bolster their own organization to bolster the sagging parent club.

Blaylock had a 9-4 record for Rochester, N. Y., and a 1.85 earned run average, the best in the league.

The rangy 185-pounder from Muldrow, Okla., appeared in 15 games, going the route nine times and compiling 92 strikeouts in 109 innings.

Monday, the fourth-place Cardinals traded utility man Chuck Harmon to Omaha for left-handed hitting outfielder Charley Peete, leading hitter in the American Association.

Billy Klaus. The Red Sox have won 10 of 12 games in their biggest surge of the campaign.

The Baltimore Orioles scored two 5-3 triumphs that stretched the Chicago White Sox' losing streak to 10 games and knocked them out to fourth place. Don Ferrarese burling a three-hitter in the first game and Bill Wright came through with a six-hitter in the nightcap to extend the Orioles' winning streak to five games.

Doug Ford is PGA Favorite

CANTON, Mass. (AP)—Defending champion Doug Ford, because "he's one of the better scramblers," was the pick of most of his fellow pros today to win the PGA golf championship which begins Friday on the Blue Hill Country Club course.

"Believe me it takes a scrambler to win this one," said veteran Jimmy Demaret, expressing the general sentiment of the other 137 golfers who will be shooting to dethrone Ford. "That isn't to say that Doug isn't a good golfer, for he is."

"But he's young—only 33—and it takes one of the younger golfers to win it, just as it takes what we call scramblers," he added.

Ford won the title last year in his first shot at it, beating Cary Middlecoff, the U. S. Open champion, 4 and 3 in the finals.

By a scrambler, Demaret meant a golfer who isn't too straight off the tees, but can gamble to get out of trouble because if he doesn't it will only cost him a hole "and not maybe two or three strokes which are so hard to make up in medal play."

The colorful Jimmy classed Chick Harbert, the 1954 PGA winner, and Jimmy Turnesa, another of the former champions in the field, as "scramblers in the Ford class."

Sammy Snead, one of the two three-time winners of the title in the field, "is a scrambler of sorts, too," Demaret said. "But there's a difference—Snead is 44 and that's old when it comes to this match play."

The PGA is a five day affair with a single 18 hole round on Friday, two 18 hole rounds on Saturday and Sunday, and 36-hole matches on Monday and Tuesday. Thus to win it, the champion conceivably would have to go 162 holes.

Braves' Joe Adcock, Struck by Ball, Chases Giants' Reuben Gomez Across Field

MILWAUKEE (AP)—What a sight! There was Milwaukee's big Joe Adcock chasing New York's little Reuben Gomez across the field. A third base coach tried to tackle Gomez and police finally restored peace and quiet.

The wildest moment in Milwaukee County Stadium this season started seconds after Gomez, the Giants' pitcher, hit Adcock on the left wrist in the second inning. As Adcock walked slowly to first, the big first sacker could be seen talking to Gomez.

Suddenly, Gomez wheeled on the mound as Adcock was about half way to first and threw the ball at Adcock again, this time hitting him in the left side.

Gomez darted off the mound as Adcock started for him. Gomez won the race to the New York dugout, thanks to interference by his teammates, umpires and police.

Braves Third Base Coach Johnny Riddle attempted to tackle Gomez between third and home but failed. The entire Giants' bench came out of the dugout to shelter Gomez from the lumbering Adcock and the Braves came to Adcock's aid.

"He called me an SOB," Adcock said in explaining his action.

"That's when I started out to the mound. I never was so mad in my life. I'm sorry I didn't catch him."

Gomez said, "I didn't hear anything he said to me. When I turned around, he was running toward me, so I threw the ball at him. I didn't miss either."

The slender pitcher, considerably outweighed by the 210-pound Adcock, said he ran to the dugout because, "I wasn't going to get my ribs broken."

Gomez stopped only briefly in the dugout.

Several plain clothesmen later took Gomez to the Hotel Schroeder. Adcock also left the park in a hurry at the request of police.

"I imagine this means an automatic 10-day suspension," Adcock said ruefully. Both men were ejected from the game, but it was not known if any other action would be taken.

New York Manager Bill Rigney said he would do nothing as far as reprimanding Gomez for his part in the incident.

"I blame Adcock for charging Gomez," he said. Adcock crowds the plate on the first pitch and Gomez keeps batters away from the plate on early pitches.

When asked if he ever seen anything like it before, Rigney said: "Have you?"

Kiwanis Club Votes to Take Over Operation of Lighted Ball Field

Members of the Kiwanis club last night voted to take over operation of the VFW baseball field near the fairgrounds.

The field, called one of the best in this area, has been built and completely paid for by popular subscription and donated labor, through the efforts of a small group including Hugh Walker, Bob Karnes, Charles "Huck" Gee and Victor Mitchell. The ground is owned by the VFW which has leased it free of charge for the baseball field.

The Kiwanis club is the sponsor of the summer baseball program for the youth of the city and including teams from Raleigh and Crab Orchard and other places which play local teams.

The program, under the direction of Fred Underdierich of the Kiwanis club, is one of the largest in southern Illinois and of benefit to more than 200 boys. Three games are played daily, two in the afternoon and one at night, and the field also is a practice place for the boys during the morning hours.

The program has been a big task for the past few years for the Kiwanis club and the club has been selected as the logical civic group to operate the field. Kiwanians have received the help of local businessmen and individuals in helping finance the summer project and also have had the help of volunteers in operating the concession stand at the ball park to help pay for the lights for the night games.

The night games have been scheduled especially to encourage parents and the general public to attend and see for themselves the benefit which the program brings to the boys of the community. The grandstand is a comfortable place in the evening

NUERNBERG, Germany (UP) — U. S. Military police conducted a hunt to find a German girl in the Nuernberg area today in search for an American soldier who attacked a 19-year-old German girl in a city park Tuesday night.

The latest act of violence involving U. S. troops and German civilians was reported shortly after German officials met with U. S. military officials to discuss bitter complaints registered by the German population.

The young nurse said the soldier threw her to the ground and tried to rape her, but he fled when she called for help. She said she bit the GI's arm, and military police began a search for a soldier bearing tell-tale teeth marks.

The recent death of two German civilians in brawls with GIs and the rape of a young girl by a gang of soldiers prompted a meeting between Nuernberg city officials, German newspaper editors, Army Area Commander Col. T. R. Kimpson and military police officers.

Issue of Leatherneck Training Main Defense Plea for Sergeant

PARRIS ISLAND, S. C. (AP) — A court-martial was told today that Marine Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon led his recruit platoon into a tidal stream where six drowned "not for sadistic pleasure but for the dedicated purpose of making Marines."

When McKeon saw panic sweep over the outfit when one man slipped in the water, he risked his own life repeatedly in an effort to save every one, McKeon's attorney said.

Doom Explains Water Situation At Kiwanis Club

Amos Doom, superintendent of the city water department, explained the present water situation at a meeting of the Kiwanis club held last night at the Masonic temple.

He stated that treatment of the water in the reservoirs for the marine growth which is causing a bad odor and taste in the water and the addition of the new filter at the water plant will quickly cause the taste and odor to disappear.

"Already," he said, "the odor is disappearing from the water entering the plant. But," he said, "the odor will remain for a little while in the mains before it disappears in all sections of the city."

The increase in capacity and better lines which have been proposed to the south section of the city, when finally completed, will provide a steady pressure of water and will help prevent cloudy or muddy water, he stated.

Following the meeting last night members of the team practiced at the VFW baseball park for the game with the Rotarians to be played Wednesday night, July 25.

On Thursday night, July 26, members of the club will take the traveling gavel to the Anna club. Local Kiwanians will meet at the Masonic temple at 5:30 p. m. to attend the meeting at Anna which begins at 7:00. Because of the trip to Anna on Thursday night, there will be no meeting of the club Tuesday evening, July 24.

On Monday night some members of the club will attend a sports day, an annual event, at which the Marion club will be host.

List Polls for Wheat Quota Vote on Friday

Voting places in Saline county for the wheat marketing quota referendum to be held July 20 were designated today by Herman Driskell, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

The polling places are as follows:

Rector, Eldorado, Cottage and Mountain townships will vote at Cottage Grove Townhouse.

Voters from Harrisburg, Independence, Carrier Mills, and Stonefort townships will vote at the city hall, Harrisburg.

Voters from Brushy, Galatia, Tate, Long Branch, and Raleigh townships will vote at the townhouse in Galatia.

Growers eligible to vote in the wheat quota referendums are all those who will have more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest on a farm in 1957. These farmers (have been or are being) notified of their wheat allotments. Quotas do not affect those farmers who harvest 15 acres or less of wheat for grain on a farm.

If quotas are approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in the wheat referendum, the quotas will remain in effect for 1957, and price support will be available to farmers who have complied with their farm wheat allotments at a level between 75 and 90 per cent of parity. Those farmers who exceed the larger of the farm allotment or 15 acres will be subject to a penalty of 45 percent of the parity price for wheat on the excess production.

If more than one-third of the growers voting disapprove the quotas, they will not be in effect, and price supports will be available to farmers who have complied with their farm wheat allotments at 50 percent of parity.

Baby Left on Floor For Nap is Electrocuted

NEW ORLEANS (UP) — A baby left on the floor for a nap was hedged about with pillows for safety but nevertheless was killed by a freak accident.

Police said the child, 13-month-old Carolyn Treadway, of Dallas, Tex., inched over the pillows just far enough to touch a radiator and floor lamp at the same time and was electrocuted. Police said the lamp apparently was defective.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Treadway Jr. were visiting in the home of friends in New Orleans.

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a bill to authorize 35 new judgeships to help meet the growing case load in federal courts across the nation.

Twisters Hit Four States With Cool Front

By United Press

Tornadoes dipped from a large storm center late Tuesday, swooping down through Minnesota, Iowa, Colorado and Oklahoma, destroying property and killing fowl.

The worst twister swept through an area near Tenno, Minn., killing more than 3,000 turkeys on two poultry farms. Observers reported seeing the storm uproot a barn, shattering it completely. Edwin Roison, a Tenno farmer, said that although he leaped into a ditch when he saw the storm coming, the winds lifted him right out of his shelter. The Weather Bureau said four funnels were sighted during this storm.

A twister at New Hampton, Iowa, in the northeast corner of the state dumped a postal truck over, injuring the truck driver with a head gash. The funnel rocked the New Hampton Country Club from its foundation and ripped off part of its roof.

The tornado near Enid, Okla., dipped from a belt of thunderstorms that extended across Oklahoma and Kansas.

Another twister was reported to have touched the ground 30 miles south of Thurman, Colo., Monday, but caused no damage.

Hail measuring a half inch in diameter fell at Dickinson, N. D., which also was buffeted by gusts up to 58 miles per hour.

The Central Plains basked in relatively cool weather Tuesday and early today, some early morning temperatures reading 15 degrees below Tuesday's low. As the cool front glided eastward, its effects were noticeable in Pennsylvania, where drops of 10 to 15 degrees were reported.

Dulles Sees No Objections to Cut in NATO Forces

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today he sees no political objection to a cut in NATO forces if military experts urge such action.

He said he does not believe the NATO alliance, a key plank in U. S. foreign policy, would be destroyed or seriously weakened if there is a downward revision in its defense goals in line with competent military judgment. But he quickly added that military experts usually oppose such cuts.

Dulles discussed the problem of NATO manpower levels at a lengthy news conference devoted chiefly to reports that Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, has tentatively proposed an 800,000-man cut in U. S. military manpower by 1960.

Rift by Two Foreign Beauties Steals Show at Miss Universe Pageant

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UP)—A rift between two foreign beauties stole the show at the Miss Universe pageant today from 16 domestic girls selected as finalists for the Miss U.S.A. title.

Even when Miss U.S.A. and her four runners-up are chosen tonight, the atmosphere at the contest still may be uneasy because of a controversy between Sara Tal, "Miss Israel," and Marina Orschel, 19, "Miss Germany."

The dispute erupted shortly before Tuesday night's selection of Miss U.S.A. finalists when Miss Tal refused to pose for photographs with Miss Orschel. The Israeli beauty later allowed her picture to be taken with the German contestant, but only after being coaxed by contest officials.

"I have nothing against Miss Germany personally," Miss Tal explained. "It is a matter of something entirely different. If I posed with her I would be afraid to go home and face my mother."

Miss Israel said her mother's family was wiped out in Poland when it was invaded by Germany and that her mother was the only one of her whole family to escape.

Miss Germany commented that Miss Israel was a nice girl, and added, "I don't know what to say."

"On the other hand," she continued, "like any German, I am proud of my country. It's very unfortunate."

Those selected as finalists for the Miss U.S.A. title included:

Miss Maryland — Charlene Holt, Annapolis; Miss New Jersey — Dolores Winfield, 21, Cranford, N. J.; Miss Ohio — Eleanor Wood, 18, Canton, Ohio, and Miss Tennessee — Stella Wilson, 19, Covington, Tenn.
